ASPEN CORPORATION BECOMES A PART OF THE PGA CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM!

Aspen Golf restores prestigious Oak Hill Country Club, the site of the 2003 PGA Championship

Daniels, West Virginia, - Aspen Golf, a subsidiary of the Aspen Corporation of Daniels, West Virginia recently completed the restoration of the greenside bunkers on the prestigious east course at Oak Hill Country Club in Rochester, New York. The course is set to host the 2003 PGA Championship from August 14 – 17, 2003. World-renowned golf course architect, Tom Fazio was the restoration architect for the project. The course, designed by Donald Ross, has hosted two US Amateur championships, three US Opens, the Ryder Cup, US Senior Open and the PGA Championship.

Donnie Adkins, President of Aspen, stated, “we are pleased that our work will be tested by a field of world class professional golfers and will be viewed by millions of people on national television. All of the Aspen employees take great pride in their workmanship and are proud to be part of such a high profile sporting event.”

Aspen Golf specializes in golf course renovation and construction throughout the eastern United States. Ronnie Adkins, Vice President of Aspen, said, " Aspen was selected to perform the restoration work at Oak Hill and Mystic Rock because of our reputation for attention to detail and quality of workmanship on numerous other high profile courses. We have a great track record and that word spreads quickly. When architects and golf clubs want quality work that meets the high demands of the PGA tour players and club members, they call on us."

Aspen Golf also recently completed a major renovation at the Pete Dye designed Mystic Rock course located in Farmington, PA. which is scheduled to host the PGA 84 Lumber Classic from September 18 – 21, 2003, as well as local projects in West Virginia, which include work at Glade Springs, The Greenbrier, The Pines, Sleepy Hollow, and the Berry Hills Country Club.

Aspen Corporation has two subsidiaries, Aspen Golf and Aspen Landscape, a full service landscape and lawn care company, both located in Daniels, West Virginia.
